JANUARY MEETING

Peter Macasieb

We are very pleased to welcome back for our first meeting of the year, accomplished bonsai artist Peter Macasieb who will be demonstrating the fine art of grafting more desirable foliage onto your bonsai. Peter has devoted a lot of time and effort to improving both the survival rate of individual grafts and the appearance of the end result. He applies his techniques to Shohin and to larger sizes of trees. He also does a great deal of propagating of Junipers and other trees and I hope you will be ready with any questions you've had on these and other bonsai subjects. One of Peter's additional strengths is in fine detail wiring and he always has some useful tips about achieving a polished and beautiful arrangement of branches.

Please join us in welcoming Peter and in launching a new year of Kofu Kai Bonsai.

Special Thank You

To Ralph Komai for his generous donation to Kofu Bonsai Kai in memory of his Mother who recently passed away.

DECEMBER CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Christmas party was a success with many of our members in attendance. As usual there was plenty of food, drink and merriment. The raffle table was well stocked with a variety of Bonsai related items which ended up being carried away by some happy members. This is the time of year that the club goes all out in the spirit of the holidays and try's to return to the membership with a generous supply of items for the raffle. I would like to give Bill Hutchinson special thanks for making the arrangements for the hall and getting us some new help from the church in the kitchen, which made the event much more enjoyable. I hope that all had a Happy and Merry holidays and are looking forward to another year of Bonsai at Kofu Kai.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

This is a good time for the art of Bonsai in the world. Aspiring bonsai artists who have access to the internet have abundant resources at their fingertips, from archives of historic Japanese photographs to excellent images from bonsai shows all over the planet to videos of demonstrations and step by step photos of the collection and development of trees. We can watch close up as an artist carves deadwood features or wires a complex tree and can ask that person direct questions. Although importing trees is a problem, we can order pots from ceramic artists worldwide. It's a brave new world of bonsai with regional styles flourishing and also a deeper appreciation of the Japanese heritage of today's bonsai.

As a non-profit organization with education as our focus, Kofu Bonsai Kai is able to take advantage of these new opportunities to educate the general public, the very necessary audience for bonsai, and also to cast a wide net in order to find the rare individuals who will become bonsai artists.

Manuel Martinez has done an amazing job of expanding the reach of our club, especially by re-establishing our relationship with the Bowers Museum and with exploring the possibilities of an additional event at Muzeo in Anaheim. It was Manny's idea to find a professional photographer to shoot our shows at the Bowers, supplying us with first rate images for our use in other media as well. He deviously, and wisely kept the creation of the new website hidden away, knowing that I'm a former graphic designer and might wade in and delay the project with changes. I think the new site is beautiful. Thanks Manny and to Bob Warner who plunged in and created the site. I'm very grateful to Manny for the really huge amount of thought and effort he's put into these endeavors and others. He's handed me a club with a well-lit path and also left me with big shoes to fill. Ok, I'm out of clichés now.

A special thanks to all of you who help regularly with club activities. We have positions open; including publicity and I'll be encouraging new participation.

Becoming president is an honor and I'll do my best for you all.

KOFU BONSAI KAI - BONSAI IDEAS

BY MARTY MANN

JANUARY (#77)

If deciduous trees start to sprout, bring them gradually into sunlight. If the tree is kept in a shaded area, new growth will be long, leggy and weak. Be careful to protect this new growth from any surprise cold or frost that causes dieback. When warm weather comes--so does the ever-present insect population. Be prepared to spray early with a good commercial insecticide or miticide. Follow manufacturer's directions for your mixtures.

This is the time to spray deciduous trees with a dormant spray (lime sulfur) before any sign of new growth appear. Avoid the soil surfaces in the pots as well as the pots themselves. Dripping chemicals harm the tender roots and leave unsightly stains on the pots.

Survey the finished trees in bonsai pots. Are they still a proper match in size or color to the tree? Has the maturity and styling of the tree changed it enough to consider repotting into a new pot? Is it taller, wider, fatter? Now is the time to redesign 'completed' trees. Make a list of the trees that will require repotting. Place a marker in the pots that require attention this year for identification. Begin with the conifers, followed by the deciduous trees, then the flowering and fruiting trees. Begin while they are still in a dormant stage or just beginning to emerge. Some of this activity can wait until later in February. Go easy on any pruning that may be required--particularly on the early transplants. Let the branches mature. Wait until the sap begins to flow before you do any serious pruning or pinching of the new growing tips.

Another important activity at this time involves your tools. Sort them out. Sharpen all cutting edges, remove accumulations of rust and tar stains by using the new Japanese erasers, dip into a bleach solution to purify, then oil all surfaces for protection. You're ready to go.

The annual Silhouettes show in Arcadia has for a long time been a unique, must-see event for the California bonsai community. It features deciduous trees in their dormant winter state which allows us to appreciate their design and structure. This time Kofu Bonsai Kai has been asked to contribute to the Saturday evening's entertainment by competing in a tree styling contest. These are a lot of fun and I'll be in touch with some of you to invite you to participate. The dinner is pot-luck and you are welcome to bring food. According to their flyer, guests usually bring desserts. Contact Debbie Shiba if you want to bring something else at 909-473-0999. No worries if you can't bring food, you are still very welcome at the dinner. There will be Taiko drummers and at the end of the evening an auction and raffle. I hope to see you there.
